When I wake up, I look at the empty pillow next to me and wish you were there looking into my eyes. I wish I could tell you how I really feel. I would have told you by now, but I didn’t, and now I’m afraid it’s too late. I wish I could tell you but I don’t want to scare you away from me, and I would rather see you and not be with you than to never see you again, because seeing you every day is a gift from God that I was blessed with. I guess I will never know how you feel unless I confess my love to you. Who knows - you might feel the same about me. I really think I love you, I just don’t know how to tell you.

>>> What more can a man say to the woman who opened her heart to him, allowing him to feel the warmth of her love across the great distance that separates them? You truly have no idea what I feel for you. I try to put this feeling into words, but fail miserably. This feeling of being both scared and at peace, of having both butterflies and a sense of calm, is a feeling that I have only dreamed about, I never thought I had the capacity to love anybody as much as I love you right now. Yet, my love for you continues to mature, growing beyond the realm of my heart.
>>> You see my dear Sometimes in life time, we meet people we have no expectation of meeting. Sometimes you meet people and your whole world experience reforms. Right from the first day I first saw you and started communicating with you, I started realizing the reason why I have to stay longer. There are times I search for who cares and loves me but I never see, until a day I want to fail in faith and hope but going down I saw your beautiful face and started communicating with you I found out that I have been searching for all this while it is you and no one else my dear

I wish I could tell you but I don't want to scare you away from me, and I would rather see you and not be with you than to never see you again, because seeing you every day is a gift from God that I was blessed with. You truly have no idea what I feel for you. I try to put this feeling into words, but fail miserably. This feeling of being both scared and at peace, of having both butterflies and a sense of calm, is a feeling that I have only dreamed about, I never thought I had the capacity to love anybody as much as I love you right now. Yet, my love for you continues to mature, growing beyond the realm of my heart.
